U.S. Medical Licensing Examination to be available in the Kingdom

The Secretary General of the Saudi Commission for Health Specialties (SCFHS), Dr. Abdulaziz Al-Sayegh, and the Assistant Executive President for Exams and Programs of the National Board of Medical Examiners (NBME), Dr. Peter Scholes, recently signed an agreement to provide the United States Medical Licensing Examination (USMLE Step 1,2) in the Kingdom. According to Dr. Al-Sayegh, the two sides are discussing the possibility of combining their expertise and resources in order to develop comprehensive assessment programs in Saudi Arabia.

FOREIGN RELATIONS

Prince Saud Al-Faisal holds press conference

Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al-Faisal held a joint press conference with British Foreign Secretary William Haig at the Foreign Ministry's Jeddah branch on July 5, during which he addressed current events in the Middle East.

Prince Saud expressed satisfaction with the restoration of security and stability in Bahrain. He also welcomed the launch of a comprehensive national dialogue and the formation of a fact-finding committee to investigate the recent unrest. The Kingdom, he noted, supports the serious reforms being undertaken by Bahrain and rejects foreign interference in the affairs of Gulf states. Prince Saud expressed sorrow over the deaths of civilians, including women and children, caused by regional crises. He called on all parties to act wisely, avoid bloodshed and enact reforms that not only guarantee human rights, but also guarantee the security, unity and independence of Arab countries.

Spain on track to win $10b train contract

A consortium of 13 Spanish companies, led by Renfe Railways, is reportedly in the final stages of signing a $10 billion contract to build the high-speed Saudi Railways Organization's Al-Haramain Projects, a 280-mile track linking the Holy Cities of Makkah and Madinah via Jeddah, the Saudi Gazette reported on Tuesday. The business newspaper El Economista reported on Monday that Spanish Transport Minister Jose Blanco confirmed to members of the consortium that the Spanish bid is in a good position, but it is not yet finalized. Saudi Railways Organization officials had no comment at this time.

In February 2008, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques King Abdullah bin Abdulaziz ordered that the construction of the Makkah-Madinah rail project be financed by Saudi specialized funds, a move that was expected to speed up implementation of the project. The Makkah-Madinah rail project includes five stations, two each in Makkah and Jeddah and one in Madinah. Once completed, the railway is expected to transport millions of travelers and positively impact the region's economy.
